Round and Round

Sue dies and goes to Heaven where she meets St. Peter. She notices that there are clocks everywhere. She asks St. Peter why are there so many clocks here.

St. Peter tells her that each clock represents a person on earth and that every time a person tells a lie, the clock ticks off one-second. St. Peter explains that the one clock has never moved because it belonged to mother Theresa and she never told a lie her whole life. The next clock belonged to Abraham Lincoln and since he only told two lies his whole life, only two seconds had clicked.

Hillary asks, "Where is Said's clock?"

St. Peter says, "Said's clock is in Jesus' office. He's using it as a fan."

Locked Out

Francis and Said had locked themselves out of their car, and unfortunately some important papers they needed for a meeting were inside.

"Let's use a coat hanger to pull up the lock," said Francis.

"Oh, no," argued Said. "Someone might see us and think we were trying to break in."

Endangered Species

One beautiful autumn day, a Park Ranger discovered a man sitting in the woods chewing away on a dead Toucan.

"Hey mister, the Toucan is a protected species, and killing one is punishable offence", said the Park Ranger.

The man was swiftly arrested, and ushered before the judge.

In court, he pleaded innocent to the charges against him, claiming that if he didn't eat the Toucan he would have died from starvation.

"Then we could use my pocket-knife to cut away the rubber around the window and stick our fingers through to pull up the lock."

"No, no! People would think we're too stupid to know how to use a coat hanger to open cars."

"Well, we'd better do something fast. The top's down and it's starting to rain."

"I was so hungry" complained the man, "the Toucan was the only food I could find!"

To everyone's amazement, the judge ruled in his favor.

In the judge's closing statement he asked the man, "I would like you to tell me something before I let you go. I have never eaten a Toucan, nor ever plan on it. But I'd like to know: What did it taste like?"

The man answered, "Well, it tasted like a cross between a Tapir and a Scarlet Macaw"

Varicose Veins

Varicose veins are veins that have become enlarged and twisted. The term commonly refers to the veins on the leg, although varicose veins can occur elsewhere. Veins have pairs of leaflet valves to prevent blood from flowing backwards (retrograde flow or venous reflux). Leg muscles pump the veins to return blood to the heart (the skeletal-muscle pump), against the effects of gravity. When veins become varicose, the leaflets of the valves no longer meet properly, and the valves do not work (valvular incompetence). This extensive deep venous thrombosis (DVT). Treatment options are usually support stockings, occasionally sclerotherapy, and rarely limited surgery.

Varicose veins are distinguished from reticular veins (blue veins) and telangiectasias (spider veins), which also involve valvular insufficiency, by the size and location of the veins. Many patients who suffer with varicose veins seek out the assistance of physicians who specialize in vein care or peripheral vascular disease. These physicians include vascular affected limb.

*Pain, tenderness, heaviness, inability to walk or stand for long hours, thus hindering work

*Skin conditions / Dermatitis which could predispose skin loss

*Skin ulcers especially near the ankle, usually referred to as venous ulcers.

*Development of carcinoma or sarcoma in longstanding venous ulcers. There have been over 100 reported cases of malignant transformation and the rate is reported as 0.4% to 1%.

*Severe bleeding from minor trauma, of particular concern in the elderly.

*Blood clotting within affected veins. Termed superficial thrombophlebitis. These are frequently isolated to the superficial veins, but can extend into deep veins becoming a more serious problem.

*Acute fat necrosis can occur, especially at the ankle of overweight patients with varicose veins. Females are more frequently affected than males.

Diagnosis

Clinical tests

Clinical tests that may be used include:

*Trendelenburg test

*Fegan's test

*Perthe's test

*Multiple tornique test

However it should be noted that since the advent of Lower limbs venous ultrasonography, these tests are of limited or no value.

Causes

Varicose veins are more common in women than in men, and are linked with heredity. Other related factors are pregnancy, obesity, menopause, aging, prolonged standing, leg injury, and abdominal straining. Varicose veins are unlikely to be caused by crossing the legs or ankles. Less commonly, but not exceptionally, varicose veins can be due to other causes, as post phlebitic obstruction or incontinence, venous and arteriovenous malformations.

More recent research has shown the importance of pelvic vein reflux (PVR) in the development of varicose veins. John Hobbs showed varicose veins in the legs could be due to ovarian vein reflux and John Lumley and his team showed recurrent varicose veins could be due to ovarian vein reflux. Mark Whiteley and his team reported that both ovarian and internal iliac vein reflux causes leg varicose veins and that this condition affects 14% of women with varicose veins or 20% of women who have had vaginal delivery and have leg varicose veins. In addition there is evidence that failing to look for, and treat, pelvic vein reflux can be a cause of recurrent varicose veins.

There is increasing evidence for the role of incompetent Perforator veins (or "perforators") in the formation of varicose veins. and recurrent varicose veins.

Varicose veins could also be caused by hyperhomocysteinemia in the body, which can degrade and inhibit the formation of the three main structural components of the artery: collagen, elastin and the proteoglycans. Homocysteine permanently degrades cysteine disulfide bridges and lysine amino acid residues in proteins, gradually affecting function and structure. Simply put, homocysteine is a 'corrosive' of long-living proteins, i.e. collagen or elastin, or lifelong proteins, i.e. fibrillin. These long-term effects are difficult to establish in clinical trials focusing on groups with existing artery decline.

Treatment

Treatment can be either conservative or active. Active medical intervention can be divided into surgical and non-surgical treatments. Newer methods including endovenous laser treatment, radiofrequency ablation and foam sclerotherapy appear to work as well as surgery for varices of the greater saphenous vein.

Conservative

The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) produced clinical guidelines in July 2013 recommending that all people with symptomatic varicose veins (C2S) and worse should be referred to a vascular service for treatment. Conservative treatments such as support stockings should not be used unless treatment was not possible.

The symptoms of varicose veins can be controlled to an extent with the following:

*Elevating the legs often provides temporary symptomatic relief.

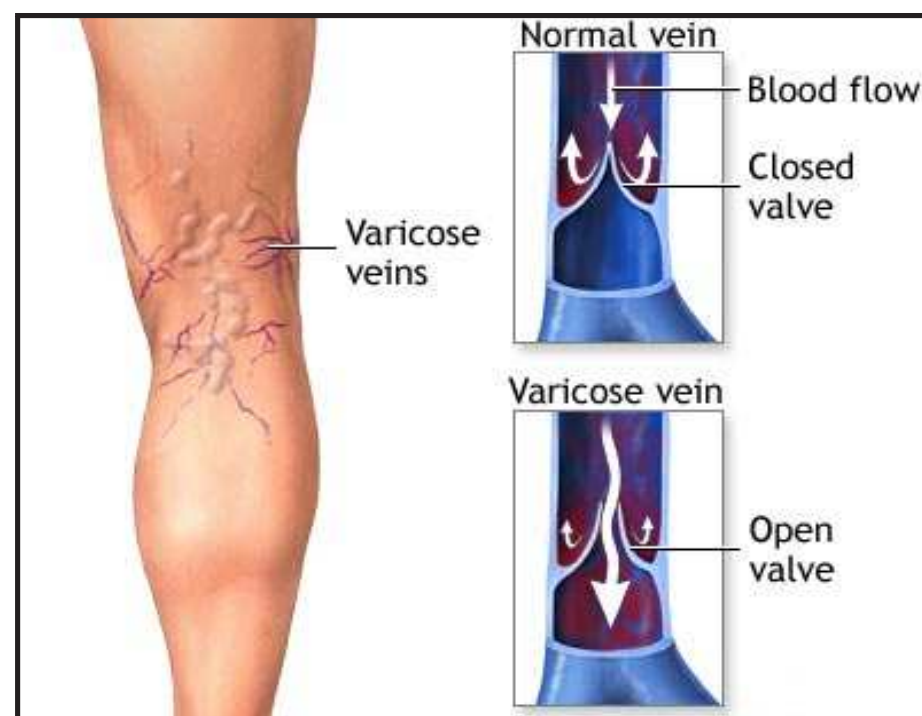

*Advice about regular exercise sounds sensible but is not supported by any evidence.

*The wearing of graduated compression stockings with variable pressure gradients (Class II or III) has been shown to correct the swelling, nutritional exchange, and improve the microcirculation in legs affected by varicose veins. They also often provide relief from the discomfort associated with this disease. Caution should be exercised in their use in patients with concurrent arterial disease.

*The wearing of intermittent pneumatic compression devices have been shown to reduce swelling and increase circulation

*Diosmin/Hesperidine and other flavonoids.

*Anti-inflammatory medication such as ibuprofen or aspirin can be used as part of treatment for superficial thrombophlebitis along with graduated compression hosiery – but there is a risk of intestinal bleeding. In extensive superficial allows blood to flow backwards and they enlarge even more. Varicose veins are most common in the superficial veins of the legs, which are subject to high pressure when standing. Besides being a cosmetic problem, varicose veins can be painful, especially when standing. Severe long-standing varicose veins can lead to leg swelling, venous eczema, skin thickening (lipodermatosclerosis) and ulceration. Life-threatening complications are uncommon, but varicose veins may be confused with deep vein thrombosis, which may be life-threatening.

Non-surgical treatments include sclerotherapy, elastic stockings, elevating the legs, and exercise. The traditional surgical treatment has been vein stripping to remove the affected veins. Newer, less invasive treatments which seal the main leaking vein are available. Alternative techniques, such as ultrasound-guided foam sclerotherapy, radiofrequency ablation and endovenous laser treatment, are available as well. Because most of the blood in the legs is returned by the deep veins, the superficial veins, which return only about 10% of the total blood of the legs, can usually be removed or ablated without serious harm.

Secondary varicose veins are those developing as collateral pathways, typically after stenosis or occlusion of the deep veins, a common sequel of surgeons, phlebologists or interventional radiologists.

Signs and symptoms

*Aching, heavy legs (often worse at night and after exercise).

*Appearance of spider veins (telangiectasia) in the affected leg.

*Ankle swelling, especially in evening.

*A brownish-yellow shiny skin discoloration near the affected veins.

*Redness, dryness, and itchiness of areas of skin, termed stasis dermatitis or venous eczema, because of waste products building up in the leg.

*Cramps may develop especially when making a sudden move as standing up.

*Minor injuries to the area may bleed more than normal or take a long time to heal.

*In some people the skin above the ankle may shrink (lipodermatosclerosis) because the fat underneath the skin becomes hard.

*Restless legs syndrome appears to be a common overlapping clinical syndrome in patients with varicose veins and other chronic venous insufficiency.

*Whitened, irregular scar-like patches can appear at the ankles. This is known as atrophie blanche.

Complications

Most varicose veins are reasonably benign, but severe varicosities can lead to major complications, due to the poor circulation through the

Your Weekly Horoscope and Lucky Numbers

ARIES:

March 22 to April 20

Handle any outstanding legal matters or kick off new projects at the beginning of the week. A proactive approach to all aspects of your life can lead to serious progress now. Around Thursday and Friday, the universe asks you to read between the lines and go beyond the obvious. A little solo contemplation is very fruitful as well — look within and discover the source of your current state of mind and heart. When the weekend comes, you're all fired up, and meeting new people is a grand idea. You might just make a great connection. Lucky numbers: 02, 37, 54.

TAURUS:

April 21 to May 21

The universe may provide something that jolts you out of your routine at the beginning of the week, and if not, you might think about mixing it up yourself. Go someplace new; get a different point of view. You may feel unusually vulnerable or moody around Thursday and Friday, and it's important to pinpoint the source of this sensitivity or these emotions. Do something physical, too; it will help you destress and get grounded. You might walk to work, go to yoga or try kickboxing. This weekend, wrapping others around your little finger is remarkably easy, so choose whom you exercise your charm on with care. Lucky numbers: 17, 22, 65.

GEMINI:

May 22 to June 21

Two heads are better than one at the beginning of the week — get a partner, a friend or a coworker in on whatever you're trying to accomplish. Having fun with it makes forward motion easy, and they can help keep you on task. Around Thursday and Friday, listen to what your physical being is telling you. Attending to your health is important now, and your body's likely trying to send you a message about what it needs. It looks like there's an action-packed weekend ahead, with relationships highlighted. A connection can be taken much deeper if you want to go there. Lucky numbers: 09, 42, 59.

CANCER

June 21 to July 21

Home may not be the tranquil oasis you'd like at the beginning of the week. Maybe a relationship there needs attention, or maybe it's just the housework ... whatever it is, a proactive attitude on your part is better than a passive one. Around Thursday and Friday, however, you take a wait-and-see approach. Consulting a mentor, whether from the work or personal realm, prior to making a decision is an excellent idea. This weekend, your instinct to take care of others is strong, but you also need to nurture yourself. Block out some time for yourself. Lucky numbers: 71, 88, 91.

LEO:

July 24 to August 21

Sharing your feelings is favored at the beginning of the week, especially feelings of the romantic variety. Go out on a little bit of a limb — why the heck not? The responses you get are likely to be resoundingly positive. Around Thursday and Friday, family or friends should take priority. Make an extra effort to step outside yourself and take a look from their point of view — you may be a bit stuck in your own head now. The weekend finds you full of fun and liable to do something spontaneous. People love your wit, your generosity and your wild streak now! Lucky numbers: 06, 28, 33.

VIRGO:

August 22 to September 21

Indecisive much? At the beginning of the week, even a small choice may be difficult to make. It's the universe urging you to get grounded, including getting in touch with your beliefs and values. Then, around Thursday and Friday, someone may challenge your views. Your knee-jerk reaction might be an emotional one, but a logical consideration of the situation is also in order. Only then can you formulate a full-fledged response. After all of this, the weekend's the time for some sheer pleasure. Make plans of the blowing-off-steam, fun-loving variety. Lucky numbers: 49, 61, 78.

LIBRA:

September 22 to October 23

You're in top form at the beginning of the week if the stars have their say, multitasking marvelously at work and juggling personal matters with total panache. Fun and flirtation definitely play a role, too. Around Thursday and Friday, give work matters or your broader career concerns top priority. Change is in the air, occupationally speaking, and you don't want to get caught unaware. Make a move rather than waiting to see what happens. This weekend, you're equal parts intellectual and expressive, mind and heart, thought and feeling. It's an excellent combination. Lucky numbers: 12, 31, 53.

SCORPIO:

October 24 to November 21

You may be lost in your own head at the beginning of the week, whether you're sorting something out or just spacing out. While you might feel like being alone, checking in with a friend is a good idea. Expect a major change of mood around Thursday and Friday; you're on fire now, fully present and extra hot. Plenty of attention's coming your way — attention of the very positive variety (if the stars have their say, that is). When the weekend comes, though, you'll need to buckle down and think seriously. Let your personal philosophy be your guide. Lucky numbers: 45, 64, 84.

SAGITTARIUS:

November 22 to December 21

You're much beloved at the beginning of the week, even more so than usual. Is it your extra-sparkling wit, or the way you intuit others' needs so sweetly, or how you share your knowledge without being condescending? Enjoy the good energy, because around Thursday and Friday, you might have some mood swings to contend with. Where's this coming from? Find out and accomplish some personal growth — and get happy in time for a lucky-looking weekend. Your spirit of adventure and willingness to try virtually anything new nets you an unexpected reward now. Lucky numbers: 15, 27, 97.

CAPRICORN:

December 22 to January 20

All of your efforts may not quite be paying off as they should at the beginning of the week, but it would be entirely unlike you to give up. Timing is everything, and this is probably just a delay. By Thursday and Friday, you can perceive something you've missed, and a little introspection leads to a lot more personal power. Get organized now, too — workwise and otherwise. This weekend, someone who thinks you're always entirely practical would be surprised (and likely thrilled) to be let in on some of your innermost idealism. Do you dare? Lucky numbers: 10, 36, 59.

AQUARIUS:

January 20 to February 18

You're not one to let differences of opinion or background stand in the way of something good. At the beginning of the week, you can make a friendship or forge a fruitful work connection with someone entirely unlike you. Find the common ground. Adjusting your pace is key on Thursday and Friday. Whether it's work, romance or another area entirely, seek the balance between moving too slowly and getting ahead of yourself. Fun is to be found this weekend in a group setting, especially one that involves common values or a joint goal. Get yourself around some like-minded, freethinking individuals. Lucky numbers: 75, 82, 93.

PISCES:

February 20 to March 21

While making a decision may be tough at the beginning of the week, it's important to weigh the pros and cons, then take a proactive step. Otherwise you'll be left in limbo — or left to deal with someone else's choices. Around Thursday and Friday, your emotions may be running the show. Spend time with trusted loved ones and do an activity that helps clear your head. And while the weekend may bring a difference of opinion, it's all about how you handle it. Ask questions to find out what underpins their point of view, rather than pushing yours. Lucky numbers: 24, 66, 96.

thrombophlebitis, consideration should be given to anti-coagulation, thrombectomy or sclerotherapy of the involved vein.

*Topical gel application, helps in managing symptoms related to varicose veins such as inflammation, pain, swelling, itching and dryness. Topical application-Noninvasive and has patient compliance.

Surgical

Several techniques have been performed for over a century, from the more invasive saphenous stripping, to less invasive procedures like ambulatory phlebectomy and CHIVA.

Stripping

Stripping consists of removal of all or part the saphenous vein (great/long or lesser/short) main trunk. The complications include deep vein thrombosis (5.3%), pulmonary embolism (0.06%), and wound complications including infection (2.2%). There is evidence for the Great Saphenous Vein growing back again after stripping. For traditional surgery, reported recurrence rates, which have been tracked for 10 years, range from 5–60%. In addition, since stripping removes the saphenous main trunks, they are no longer available for use as venous bypass grafts in the future (coronary or leg artery vital disease)

Alleged Rapist Missing Mystery Surrounds Death of Emerson Daly

SAN IGNACIO, Cayo District, Wednesday, January 14, 2015.

Police today, Wednesday, January 14, 2015, issued a missing person's report for a man from San Ignacio town.

According to police the wife of 35 year old Anibal Diaz went to the police station to report that he left his home in the Santiago Juan area of San Ignacio around 7 pm on Monday, January 12, 2015, to go fishing in the Macal River. That was the last time she saw him.

Anibal Diaz is described as being of slim build, has low, straight black hair and has a tatoo of a dragon on the right upper arm. He was last seen wearing a blue short pants and an off-white shirt and blue slippers. Police are looking into the missing person's report.

But today there were ominous signs found as investigators went to the banks of the Macal River where Diaz would have gone to do his fishing. Unconfirmed reports are that blood was found in the area. Also found in the area, according to reports received, were items believed to be belongings of Anibal Diaz.

Diaz was recently released from the Belize Central Prison on Supreme Court bail. He was on remand pending trial for the alleged rape of a minor.

Daly is the owner of his own
